BABY SPACING

Something special for you from Family
Planning

Having a baby is an important decision. Don't leave it to chance.

You want the most for your new baby. That's why waiting at least eighteen months before you get pregnant again is a smart thing to do. It's better for you, your baby, and the whole family.

Your body needs time to recover.

Having a baby makes your body work hard. If you get pregnant too soon after having your baby, your next baby might not get enough nutrition. You will be tired, since most new babies don't sleep through the night. And it's hard to enjoy your baby if you don't feel your best.

Plus, babies born to mothers who wait one and a half to two years before getting pregnant again get a healthier start in life.

Family Planning is the way to go.

If you are a new mother, it is important to keep your appointment after your baby is born. You can get family planning (birth control) at that time.

With careful use of birth control, you can keep from getting pregnant until you are ready for another baby.

While breast feeding is the best way to feed your baby, remember, it will not keep you from getting pregnant.

There are many new types of birth control methods available. Find the one that is right for you!
